Friday, March 31, 2006
Bowl 016, Robertson Hall

9:00am   Continental Breakfast

9:30am   Session I: Iran’s Nuclear Aspirations: Domestic and Regional Perspectives

Opening Remarks:
Wolfgang Danspeckgruber, Director, LISD, Princeton University
Ali Ansari, Reader, School for Modern History, University of St. Andrews

Key Points for Discussion:
- The interface between Iranian aspirations and intentions for nuclear capabilities and its security concerns
- International reactions

Videotaped Remarks:
Manouchehr Mottaki, Foreign Minister of Iran

Videolink with Geneva Center for Security Policy, Switzerland:
Vladimir Orlov, Founding Director, PIR Center, Moscow; Co-Director, European Training Course in Security Policy, GCSP
Patrick Villemur, Ambassador, former French Permanent Representative to the UN Office in Vienna; Special Adviser to the Director, GCSP

11:15am   Coffee Break

12:30pm   Buffet Lunch (Penthouse Level, Fine Hall)

Location: 300 Wallace Hall, Princeton University

3:00pm   Session II: Iran’s Nuclear Ambitions: Technical Challenges, Political Possibilities, Multilateral Responses

Introductory Remarks:
Bruno Pellaud, former IAEA Deputy Director General, Safeguard Division
Karim Sadjadpour, Iran Analyst, International Crisis Group
Key Points for Discussion:
- Possible great power responses
- The interface between Iranian aspirations and intentions for nuclear capabilities and its security concerns
- Possible multilateral responses especially by the IAEA and UN

6:00pm Reception (Palmer House)
7:00pm Conference Dinner

Saturday, April 1, 2006
300 Wallace Hall

9:00am Continental Breakfast
9:30am Session III: Iran, Its Neighbors, and Options for the Future

Introductory Remarks:
Robert Finn, Senior Research Associate, LISD; former U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan

Key Points for Discussion:
- Strategic, political, and public diplomacy dimensions;
- The interaction between Iran, its individual neighbors, the region as a whole, and the regions to Iran’s west, south, and east;
- The role that Iran is playing;
- The ramifications for and reaction of other regional states;
- Iran and India; Iran and China.

12:30pm Concluding Luncheon
Summary and Closing Remarks

2:00pm Conference Concludes